Mr. David Zaslav
Warner Bros. Discovery, Inc.
230 Park Avenue South
New York City, NY 10003

Dear Mr. Zaslav:

I write today to inquire about your decision to advertise Warner Bros. Discovery's (WBD) coverage of abortion procedure and travel expenses rather than the company's paid family leave policy after the Supreme Court's decision in Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization. While I support businesses' efforts to support women through their benefit policies, it is troubling that your company is seemingly pressuring women to take advantage of abortion coverage rather than WBD's paid family leave policy.

On June 24, 2022, the day the Dobbs decision was released, a WBD spokesperson said that WBD "immediately expanded ... [its] healthcare benefits options to cover transportation expenses for employees and their covered family members who need to travel to access abortion and reproductive care."¹ There was no reminder about the paid family leave policies in place or emphasis that the company supported women who choose to carry their pregnancies to term and raise their children.

Women have historically faced discrimination for being pregnant due to the number of days women will be absent from the workforce due to the birth and care of their children. The Pregnancy Discrimination Act forbids discrimination based on pregnancy related to any aspect of employment, including hiring, firing, pay, job assignments, promotions, layoffs, training, and benefits.² Though illegal, there are many ways in which companies discourage women from carrying pregnancies to term, such as discouraging taking additional time off, making it impossible to get their shifts covered, or taking women off more prominent projects.³

During this time of historically high 9.1 percent inflation, skyrocketing gas prices, and baby formula shortages, it is imperative that women feel they are supported in their decision to balance their family with their work.⁴ They should not feel coerced into seeking an abortion instead of taking time off to have their child, especially since women are already having fewer children than they want.⁵ In order to better understand your company's decision to emphasize abortion coverage over paid family leave, please provide a staff level briefing no later than August 24, 2022.
